TV fans of 'Father Brown' are perhaps less aware that his creator was the celebrated writer G.K. Chesterton (1847 – 1936) who was a convert to Catholicism. Elise Harris writing in this week's Irish Catholic about the 'hiccup' to having him declared a saint refers to Dale Ahlquists' story that Chesterton was emotionally shaken and sweating before receiving Communion. Asked about it, Chesterton replied that 'I'm frightened of that tremendous reality'.
